A groundbreaking work that explores the complex interplay between globalization and local realities in the lives of women and gender-diverse people in the Global South.

Globalization has been a major force in the world for centuries, but its impact has been unevenly felt. In the Global South, globalization has brought both opportunities and challenges for women and gender-diverse people.

On the one hand, globalization has led to increased economic growth and development in many parts of the Global South. This has created new opportunities for women and gender-diverse people to enter the workforce and participate in the economy. Additionally, globalization has led to increased access to education and healthcare for women and gender-diverse people in many parts of the Global South.

On the other hand, globalization has also led to increased inequality and poverty in many parts of the Global South. This has had a disproportionate impact on women and gender-diverse people, who are more likely to be employed in low-paying jobs and to live in poverty. Additionally, globalization has led to increased violence against women and gender-diverse people in many parts of the Global South.

The complex interplay between globalization and local realities in the lives of women and gender-diverse people in the Global South is explored in detail in the groundbreaking work Globalization And Local Realities Suny Genders In The Global South.

This book brings together a team of leading scholars to examine the ways in which globalization is affecting the lives of women and gender-diverse people in the Global South. The book covers a wide range of topics, including:
