Rifkin argues that we are on the cusp of a new era, an era in which we will transition from a fossil fuel-based economy to a clean energy economy. This transition will not only address the urgent threat of climate change, but it will also create millions of new jobs and improve the lives of billions of people around the world.

New Earth Rising is not just a book about the problems we face. It is also a book about the solutions we can create. Rifkin provides a detailed roadmap for how we can build a more sustainable and just world, one that is based on renewable energy, local food systems, and participatory democracy.

The Promise of a New Earth

Rifkin's vision for a New Earth is based on three fundamental principles:

- Sustainability: We must live within the limits of our planet and ensure that future generations have access to the same resources that we enjoy today.
- Justice: We must create a more equitable world in which everyone has the opportunity to live a good life.
- Hope: We must believe that a better future is possible and that we have the power to create it.

Rifkin believes that these three principles are essential for building a truly sustainable and just world. He argues that we cannot achieve sustainability without justice, and we cannot achieve justice without hope.

The New Earth that Rifkin envisions is a world where:

- The air is clean and the water is pure.
- The land is fertile and the forests are thriving.
- People live in harmony with nature and with each other.
- Poverty, hunger, and disease have been eliminated.
- War and violence are things of the past.

This is a bold and ambitious vision, but Rifkin believes that it is achievable. He argues that we have the technology, the resources, and the knowledge to create a New Earth. All we need is the will to do so.

The Path to a New Earth

Rifkin provides a detailed roadmap for how we can build a New Earth. He argues that we need to make a fundamental shift in the way we think about energy, food, and democracy.

Energy: We need to transition from fossil fuels to renewable energy sources, such as solar and wind power. This will not only reduce our carbon emissions, but it will also create millions of new jobs and improve our national security.

Food: We need to shift from a globalized food system to a more localized food system. This will reduce our reliance on fossil fuels, improve our health, and support local farmers.

Democracy: We need to strengthen our democracy and make it more participatory. This will allow us to address the needs of all citizens and build a more just and equitable world.

Rifkin believes that these three shifts are essential for building a New Earth. He argues that we need to make these shifts now, before it is too late.

New Earth Rising is a must-read for anyone who is concerned about the future of our planet. This book offers a bold and inspiring vision for a sustainable and just world, and it provides a roadmap for how we can create that world. If you are looking for hope and inspiration, this is the book for you.
