The Author of the Gospel of John

The author of the Gospel of John is traditionally identified as John the Evangelist. John was one of the twelve apostles of Jesus, and he is believed to have been the youngest of the group. He was a close friend of Jesus, and he was the only apostle who was present at the crucifixion. After the resurrection of Jesus, John went on to become a leader of the early Church. He is believed to have written the Gospel of John late in his life, around the end of the 1st century AD.

The Date and Place of Composition

The Gospel of John was probably written between 80 and 90 AD. It was most likely written in Ephesus, where John was living at the time. The Gospel was written to a primarily Gentile audience, and it seeks to explain the meaning of Jesus' life and ministry to those who were not familiar with Jewish tradition.

The Structure of the Gospel of John

The Gospel of John is divided into 21 chapters. The first chapter is a prologue that introduces Jesus as the Word of God. The next 18 chapters contain the main body of the Gospel, which is divided into two parts. The first part (chapters 2-12) focuses on Jesus' public ministry in Galilee and Judea. The second part (chapters 13-21) focuses on Jesus' passion, death, and resurrection.

The Themes of the Gospel of John

The Gospel of John has a number of important themes, including the following:

- The divinity of Jesus

- The importance of faith
- The love of God
- The new life in Christ
- The hope of eternal life
